PARDONED MAN RETURNS HOME

Charles V. Sherman, Given His Freedom From Prison, Expected to Arrive Late Today.

CONGRATULATED BY FRIENDS

This is Gladsome Thanksgiving Day For His Aged Mother and Members of Family.

This was a gladsome Thanksgiving day for one family in Rushville. It brought joy into the heart of Mrs. Mary A. Sherman, age 79, and her children, for her son, Charles Victor Sherman, was pardoned by Governor Harmon of Ohio, yesterday afternoon, the news reaching this city late yesterday evening.

The news of the pardon was conveyed to Mr. Sherman yesterday afternoon and it was to be presented to him this morning at the regular Thanksgiving day services in the Ohio State prison. He was expected to arrive here late this afternoon and the members of his immediate family gathered to welcome him home.

The news of his pardon spread fast yesterday evening and then and this morning he and members of his family received telegrams here from his friends in this and other States, congratulating him upon his good fortune. Strong influences were brought to bear on the Ohio State officials in behalf of Mr. Sherman. It is customary for the governor to pardon one life prisoner on each national holiday. Columbus dispatches tell of the pardon as follows:

Charles Victor Sherman, 39 years old, sentenced by a jury in Butler county, Ohio, in 1905 to serve out his days in the Ohio State penitentiary for the murder of his wife, is that son. He was granted the Thanksgiving pardon Wednesday by Gov. Harmon. The pardon was to be presented to him this morning during the Thanksgiving exercises at the prison. The sole condition that goes with the pardon is that Sherman return to Rushville and his mother.

Sherman was found guilty of murdering his wife in the course of a family squabble. The couple had previously quarreled regarding Mrs. Sherman's desire to leave her home and go to work. On returning from work on the night of the crime, Sherman attempted to kiss his wife. She responded to the caress with a blow and a fist fight ensued. To protect himself, Sherman seized a chair and struck his wife a blow across the head. She fell to the floor apparently stunned. He attempted to revive her but found her to be dead.

Remorseful and filled with fear, Sherman then attempted to kill himself by cutting his throat with a razor. He inflicted several deep gashes, but failed in his purpose, and strangers found him unconscious beside the dead body.

When he recovered Sherman was placed on trial and convicted of second degree murder. Life imprisonment was the penalty. He pleaded self-defense.

The murdered woman's name was Effie May Roby Steading Connory Sherman. She was ten years Sherman's senior, and had been married three times before she met Sherman. Her first two husbands divorced her and Connory died.

Many of his former schoolmates and friends joined in petition to the Governor for a pardon. Sherman could not say a word when Warden Jones brought the news of his pardon. When he overcame emotion he requested that his mother be telegraphed. He will leave at once for his old home in Indiana.

Sherman's case was not appealed but strong influences were brought to bear on the pardon board both at that time and since to obtain his pardon. Appeals from business men of Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Pennsylvania were forthcoming by the score. Even state officials sought to secure for him his freedom as witnessed by letters on file in Gov. Harmon's office from Lieut. Gov. Frank J. Hall and James E. Watson, once candidate for governor of Indiana and former congressman, and John K. Gowdy, former consul general to Paris France. All told of the mother of Sherman, waiting in her humble home at Rushville, Ind., his childhood home, for her boy to return.

During his time in the penitentiary, Sherman has been a model prisoner. Now ill in the prison hospital this pardon may be the means of saving his life.

GUNS ARE AT A PREMIUM TODAY

Ideal Weather For Hunters Causes Hundreds of Nimrods to Bag Game Thanksgiving Day.

DEALERS REPORT BIG SALES

About every fellow who could get an implement of warfare as good as a "nigger shooter" hiked to the woods and fields today for the Bob Whites and the cotton tails. It is very likely that more game was slaughtered within the confines of Rush county today than has been the case in any recent years on Thanksgiving day. The weather was ideal for hunting and there was just enough snow left on the ground to make the tracks of rabbits plainly visible.

Hardware dealers in this city report the biggest sale of shells and other ammunition that they ever had on the few days previous to Thanksgiving. About all of the guns which could be rented or borrowed were in use and it would have been next to impossible to find a stray gun early this morning. As early as five o'clock this morning hunters were on their way to the fields and most people on rising from their slumbers this morning were greeted with the "pop, pop" of rifles and shotguns in the farming districts near the city.

KAPPA ALPHA PHI WINS GAME TODAY

Local Fraternity Football Team is Victorious Over Phi Delta Kappa by 23 to 0.

FIRST HALF ENDS 11 TO 0

The football game between the Kappa Alpha Phi and the Phi Delta Kappa fraternities of this city played at the South Main street grounds this afternoon ended at four o'clock in a victory for the Kaapa Alpha Phi's by a score of twenty-three to nothing.

The Kappa Alpha Phi team led by a score of eleven to nothing at the end of the first half. Buell scored a touchdown in the first period after ten minutes of play. Gunning failed to kick goal. The second period opened with the Kappas in possession of the ball on their own twenty-yard line. The Phi Delt held for downs and were forced to punt. Near the close of the half with the ball on the forty yard line, Todd captured a forward pass from Gunning and raced through a broken field for the second touchdown. Gunning kicked goal.

Thanksgiving.

By James Whitcomb Riley.

Let us be thankful—not only because
Since last our universal thanks were told
We have grown greater in the world's applause,
And fortune's newer smiles surpass the old—

But thankful for all things that come as alms
From out the open hand of Providence:
The winter clouds and storms—the summer calms—
The sleepless dread—the drowse of indolence.

Let us be thankful—thankful for the prayers
Whose gracious answers were long, long delayed.
That they might fall upon us unawares,
And bless us, as in greater need, we prayed.

Let us be thankful for the loyal hand
That love held out in welcome to our own,
When love and love only could understand
The need of touches we had never known.

Let us be thankful for the longing eyes
That gave their secret to us as they wept,
Yet in return found, with a sweet surprise,
Love's touch upon their lids, and, smiling, slept.

And, let us too, be thankful that the tears
Of sorrow have not all been drained away,
That through them still, for all the coming years,
We may look on the dead face of Today.

TURKEY STEALS MEANING OF DAY

In Annual Sermon at Union Services the Rev. J. B. Meacham Makes This Assertion.

THOUGHTS ARE NOT ON DAY

He Declares Thoughtless Thanksgiving Has Its Mind on Dinner—No War on Turkey.

The Rev. John B. Meacham of the First Presbyterian church in the annual Thanksgiving day sermon at the St. Paul M. E. church this morning characterized the present day Thanksgiving in most homes as a thankless and thoughtless celebration. He blamed the poor turkey for it. He declared that the historic gobbler, which has long stood as the emblem of the annual holiday for giving thanks, robs the Thanksgiving of today of its true meaning.

"The thoughtless and thankless Thanksgiving is that," he asserted, "which occupies itself with thoughts of the turkey dinner. That kind of Thanksgiving does not thank God that it has turkey for dinner. Don't misunderstand me but I believe that Thanksgiving is putting Thanksgiving day in jeopardy. Please do not think that I am making war on the turkey because I am invited out to dinner today. It is not because I like turkey less, but because I love the giving of thanks more."

The Rev. Mr. Meacham said that there are two kinds of Thanksgiving days, the thoughtful and thankful, and the ungrateful and thoughtless. He declared that the thankless and thoughtless is afflicted like the human being in that it is unhealthy, that it is near-sighted and has small thoughts.

He asserted that this class of Thanksgiving is afflicted with a kind of charity that rebounds, the kind that has the idea of self-benefit all the time. The Rev. Mr. Meacham asserted that this kind has a rubber string attached to it so that it rebounds to the giver and never gets far from home.

"This kind," he continued, "congratulates itself for the deeds of others and shakes its own hand at every opportunity. It makes a microscope out of its own magnifying glass. It so obscures things that are really great that it sees nothing but the small things in life. It only thanks itself for the things it has done, but never thanks God."

The Rev. Mr. Meacham declared that ingratitude causes more heartaches than any other one thing in the world. The history of the world is filled with the characterization of ingratitude, he said. Mr. Meacham asserted that after some men have done many righteous things from their own standpoint, we can trace back and find that God so provided by giving His only Son that these things might be accomplished.

"This class of Thanksgiving," the Rev. Mr. Meacham declared, "is only superficial and is a byproduct of the great. It is the kind of ingratitude that was in Brutus' mind when he stabbed Caesar. Not because he loved Caesar less but because he loved Rome more. It was not so much the dagger that vanquished Caesar, but the fact that he who wielded it was Brutus, whom he had befriended. So it was in King Lear. It was not so much the storm that

RICHMOND WRECK TIES UP TRAFFIC

Local Freight Crashes Into Rear End of Extra Freight on River Bridge Near Richmond.

ONE CAR FALLS INTO RIVER

A wreck on the local division of the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday noon caused by the southbound passenger train due here at 3:15 o'clock to be four hours late. It arrived in the evening shortly after seven o'clock and passed the evening northbound passenger train here.

The second section of eastbound freight No. 72 crashed into the rear end of extra freight No. 8397 in the middle of the bridge over Whitewater river just this side of Richmond which caused the local tie-up. One freight car packed with meats was forced several feet in the air and then toppled over in the river, a distance of one hundred feet. Several freight cars were demolished but the miracle of the accident was that no member of either train crew was even scratched.

It is charged that Engineer Eskoy, of No. 72, was running his big engine at a speed he could not immediately control. This, it is alleged, was the cause of the most serious wreck that has occurred on the bridge in years, and which tied up the south track for several hours.

SPENDS TURKEY DAY QUIETLY

Uncle Jack Gowdy is Thankful Because he Believes he Will Soon Recover From Illness.

SUFFERS WITH RHEUMATISM

He Converses About Politics, His Pet Theme, and Regrets he Could Not Attend Love Feast.

Uncle Jack Gowdy spent Thanksgiving day at his home at 619 North Perkins street and in the privateness of his own home, not because he enjoyed being alone, but because he is compelled to remain in his room and sit in his big easy chair or lie in his bed. He has been suffering from the effects of sciatic rheumatism in his right leg for eleven weeks and only once has he been downstairs since his illness. That was the day of the Republican love feast here in October. He just could not remain in his room with so many callers and politics buzzing in the air. And Uncle Jack does love politics.

But Capt. Gowdy has something to be thankful for today. It is the optimistic view which he takes of his illness. He says that he is on the way to speedy recovery and that it will not be long before he will be able to appear on the streets, go to his farm each day and see how the work is being carried on and to continue again in the regular routine of his happy life.

Mr. Gowdy contracted the disease from which he is suffering now while he was doing service for his country and when he was a mere lad of seventeen years, who should not have been loosened from his mother's apron strings. He had a severe attack of sciatic rheumatism in the winter of 1862, just forty-nine years ago, and was confined to an army hospital for four weeks. He lay on a hard pallet in what was termed a hospital in Louisville, Kentucky, and suffered untold agony.

That attack in his youth is responsible for him being crippled today. The rheumatism caused the muscles to contract and now his right leg is shorter than his left and causes him to limp. When he recovered from the rheumatism he was allowed to re-enter his company of cavalry and remained with the company until November 5, 1865, when he was honorably discharged.

Capt. Gowdy's rheumatism is not attacking him in the same place it did before. The first attack which caused his lameness was in his right hip and knee and that part of his leg between. Now the rheumatism is playing havoc with his right leg between his foot and knee.

Uncle Jack was reminiscence yesterday evening when a Daily Republican reporter called. "It was just forty-nine years ago today when I lay in that hospital at Louisville, Kentucky. Will I ever forget it? Well, I should say not, not to my dying day. I would have had to quit the army had I been in the infantry, but I could ride a horse even if I did have a bad leg. That sickness made my leg short and I have been crippled to this day. It has never given me very much trouble until eleven weeks ago—yes sir, it will be eleven weeks tomorrow since I came home from the farm suffering with a pain in my right foot. I got my boot off as soon as possible and came upstairs and here I have been all that time. I got down just once and that was when Sherman invaded Rushville. I had one hundred callers that day and I could not receive all of them up here."

Uncle Jack can not keep from politics. The rehearsal of the nature of his illness caused him to mention the

When the Sun Appears Kellogg's Disappears

Fairly flies, too, when the sun gets at it. He knows how delicious the crackling, filmy flakes really are. It's a taste that everybody likes—the taste of finest, sun-ripened white corn, daintily toasted and flaked. Serve Kellogg's tomorrow in your home—and watch it disappear.

Good Old Indiana Sends Greetings to Sister States

Indiana to her sister states sends greeting. Our grain bins are bursting, cribs piling high, cellars filled with big, red apples—hope yours are the same.

If you have beaten us out—good. We want to know how you did it. We are going to tell how we lent a helping hand to Nature, and how that lady in her graciousness tipped the horn of plenty into Indiana's lap.

To states less richly blessed this year than usual we offer Moses' recipe for adversity: Turn the serpent into a useful rod; namely, master the problem of drouth and thus farm every year better than before.

And we suggest the comfort of a good time coming; treasurers of earth padlocked fast this year will next come tumbling out richer than ever—under the touch of plentiful rains and sunshine.

The power of the New Agriculture is reaching out in Indiana. Everywhere there is discussion of farm problems. Our farmers have settled down to the business at home. Merchants and bankers are co-operating with tenants—owners and renters studying the fascinating new business, adopting business methods, stocking up with regal blood, laying plans for maximum yields, searching abroad for new crops to grow.

Indiana farmers have settled down to farming at home—not caught by the lure of the west, free from the fever of wandering.

And what does this mean? The virgin west—Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas—from 1866 to 1875 grew as a ten year average 13.1 bushels of wheat per acre. Illinois in the same period grew as a yearly average but 11.9 bushels per acre. In 1910 Kansas with a wheat crop better than her average, grew 14 bushels per acre, while America's yield was 14.1. Kansas stood first among the winter wheat States with a total production of 62,068,000 bushels from a wheat acreage of 4,420,000. England, farmed for 2,000 years, yielded in 1910, 55,067,000 bushels from only 1,716,600 acres. This was 32 bushels per acre to virgin Kansas' 14, and young America's 14.1! And the story is repeated year by year in wheat and other great crops of the fields.

Indiana, farmed second longest of the corn belt States in 1910 and the highest State average of corn production per acre among these States—better than the younger States of the west. Big yields—which are the only profitable yields—do not go necessarily with virgin soil, new States, the magic West. They are the production of plentiful population, of many workers, of thorough methods, of multiplied live stock, of accumulated capital.

Indiana has all these, and of rural folks a greater percentage than all but one of the nine States of the Union greatest in population. Two-thirds of the Hoosier population is rural. In the past ten years rural Indiana has gained 6 per cent, as compared to Kentucky's 4, Michigan's 3, Illinois' 2, Wisconsin's 1, and to Iowa's loss of 11 per cent.

As early as 1900 the Hoosier State was growing 50 per cent. more clover than any other State in the Union—our farmers had no idea of deserting creamed farms for the cities or for the farther west. They had grasped the situation—that the farm is as good a place as any for reasonable dividends, and that Indiana is as fine a place to farm as the busiest globe trotter could find.

The State is called the automobilist's heaven—for its macadamized pikes over-arched with elms, Indiana is pre-eminently a State of good roads—these of firm, natural foundation, and thousands of miles of stone and gravel surfacing. Every farm, so, is brought close to neighbors and to town. And in this center of American population, the easy means of communication could not help carrying the gospel of good farming to every man. It passes by word of mouth, comes by every mail, is taught by the example of Purdue graduates, by short course men, by self-educated farmers in every county and township. It is a day of the new learning!

The old creaming process is over. Fields made orid by long coming young fellows and old fellows caught by the new idea from the colleges, are liming; the acidity is destroyed and the clover growing rank, replaces lost felicity. And where no clover would grow, they spread a light top dressing of manure over fields drilled to wheat and seeded down with clover. The manure lightly and evenly spread insures the catch, and supplies the grain and hay crop with fertility.

The State in building silos and establishing dairies—for a ton of butter, valued at $400 to $600, takes from the soil only 36 cents worth of fertility. That does not expend the State's capital so fast as exporting a ton of wheat, which robs the soil of $8.65 worth of fertility—just so much of the farmer's capital.

With The Coming of Middle Age

There is a letting down in the physical forces often shown in annoying and painful kidney and bladder ailments and urinary irregularities. Foley Kidney Pills are a splendid regulating and strengthening medicine at such a time. Try them. F. B. Johnson & Co.

An Alarm at Night

That strikes terror to the entire household is the loud, hoarse and metallic cough of croup. No mistaking it, and fortunate then the lucky parents who keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound on hand. H. W. Cassleman, Canton, N. Y., says: "It is worth its weight in gold. Our little children are troubled with croup and hoarseness, and all we give them in Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. I always have a bottle of it in the house." F. B. Johnson & Co.

Experiments Show That New Corn Will Shrink

While it has been generally known that new corn shrinks in weight after it has been gathered it is likely that even the farmer does not know just how much loss there is in weight in a year of even a single month. Several old dealers have said over and over again to watch the early gathered corn and buy it cheaply because it would lose one-fourth in weight.

Since that time some interesting experiments have been tried. Out in Iowa, which is one of the great corn states, a crib containing 100 bushels of corn was set upon a truck and weighed every month for a year. A careful watch was kept to be sure that the corn was kept under normal conditions and the deterioration in weight was figured out several decimal places.

Evidently the corn which was being used in the experiment was gathered early in the fall because the first loss was scheduled from gathering time until December 1. It was found that the corn lost 5.2% in weight between the two dates given. During the next month the corn lost 1.7% in weight, the decrease being due to the cold primarily. From January 11 until February the loss was still smaller being only 6%. From February 1 until March 1 this loss was cut in half there being but 3% loss.

After this period of hardly no loss in weight there came warmer weather and again the loss increased. Between March 1 and April 1 there was a loss of 2.0%, which was increased to 3.0% during the month of April. By this time the loss had practically ceased because the month of May showed a loss of 1.9%. June showed 1.6% loss and July 1.0%. During the month of August there was a loss of 5% and during September a loss of 4%. Between October 1 and November 1, the time of gathering there was no loss, showing that the loss had practically ceased after a lapse of eleven months.

The experiments of this kind were continued for eight years and the figures given above were the average results, being one that could be called an average year. The total loss in eleven months was 18.2% which is in pounds of a bushel of seventy pounds of 12.74 pounds. This is perhaps a greater loss than any farmer or other man interested in the corn would have guessed on short notice. Of course there are exceptional years. During the winter season of 1903 the corn under test showed a loss of 24.3% or about seventeen pounds in a bushel of seventy pounds. In another year when the corn was very dry it lost only 7.8% from November 1 to June 1 of the next year.

These experiments and the results thereof came to the notice of the Indiana Grain Dealers Association and simply for the information of its members the officers had some cards printed and distributed showing the figures.

At one mill some of the management and the men in the mill noticed the results and determined to try a method of their own. Securing a bushel of new corn on October 27 it was placed in the boiled room and allowed to dry until November 7 when it was removed and weighed. To their surprise they found that the corn that had formerly weighed seventy pounds after the period of drying weighed only fifty-six pounds. This made a loss of fourteen pounds, which is one-fifth of the original amount or expressed in percentage is a loss of 20%.

People who are familiar with the corn crops in this section of the country will not be surprised with the results of the experiment after they have seen the figures for the experiments of eight years. Last year's crop was extraordinarily for its damp condition and the damp fall which has just passed has caused the present crop to be in almost the same condition.

"If I could only get relief from this terrible itching, I would give anything," said an eczema sufferer the other day.

It may be also added that there is perhaps a light thrown upon the reason why the buyers of corn will not pay as much for the new product as for the old corn. Sometimes, although not very often there is murmuring because the dealers refuse to pay as much for the new product as for the old but the majority of people who have corn to sell are familiar with the fact that it shrinks, although the exact figures have not been figured out before this time. The Indiana Grain Dealers association has this warning upon the ears, "if you think this is incorrect, try it for yourself, and be governed accordingly. Don't fool yourself, if you do you may have to fool your creditors."

THREE AMERICANS IN ROLL OF CARDINALS

Vatican the Scene of An Imposing Ceremony.

Rome, Nov. 30.—In the consistorial hall of the vatican, Pope Pius X. conferred the red biretta upon Cardinal Farley of New York, Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, and Cardinal Falconio, late papal legate to the United States and ten other newly elected members of the sacred college. Over 1,000 persons witnessed the semi-official ceremony of the imposition of the birettas. The pope walked into the hall followed by a brilliant retinue. The purple-robed prelates occupied seats on either side of the throne in which the pontiff had taken his seat. Then the master of ceremonies called out the names of the cardinals who were present to receive the red cap. Each cardinal advanced, then genuflected three times and finally knelt in front of the pope for the imposition of the mozetta (cape) and cap. The cardinals were called in the following order:

Mgr. Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate at Washington; Mgr. Granito Di Belmonte, Pignatelli; Most Rev. John M. Farley, archbishop of New York; Most Rev. Francis Bourne, archbishop of Westminster; Mgr. L. A. Amette, archbishop of Paris; Most Rev. W. H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston; Mgr. F. V. Dubillard, archbishop of Chambery; Mgr. Roverio De Cabrieres, bishop of Montpellier, France; Mgr. Bisset, papal major domo; Mgr. Lugari, assessor of the holy office; Mgr. Pompili, secretary of the congregation council; Mgr. Billot, of the Jesuit order; Mgr. Van Rossum, redemptorist.

After the new cardinals had been invested with the minor insignia they took seats on benches around the throne. Cardinal Falconio, as the senior cardinal present, then arose and made a speech in Italian, concluding by asking the pope's blessing to sanction the faithful maintenance of the spontaneous holy promises just made. The pope repeatedly bowed in assent to the salient points made by Cardinal Falconio. He appeared to be greatly moved and in a loud, strong voice replied by thanking the cardinals for their assurances.

Mr. Roosevelt would not add to this statement, only repeating it later with added emphasis.

HANDLING THE COLT

By H. E. ALLEN, Purdue University School of Agriculture
Purdue University Agricultural Extension

A Little Coaxing Now and Then Helps Greatly in Youngster's Confidence in Man. Such Time is Well Spent.

Many farmers in the Middle West give their young colts too little attention. During the first two or three summers of the colt's life they are allowed to run free in the pasture where their owners go only occasionally to give them salt and see that they are still there, and in many cases, no attempt is made to catch and make friends with them. During the winter months they run in the barn lot in the day time and are driven into a box stall for the night where their feed is thrown to them in a careless fashion and still no steps are taken towards even halter breaking. Such treatment naturally results in a wild disposition and creates more or less fear of man. The longer such methods are practiced with colts the wilder and more fearful they get and more difficult will be the process of "breaking" and training when the time comes for putting the colts to work.

Begin When Young.

Handling should begin soon after foaling and continued, in a small way at least, throughout foalhood. The education must begin early to insure the greatest amount of usefulness when the colt reaches maturity. The profit and pleasure to be derived from the use of horses of any class depends to a great extent upon their early education and the degree to which they are subservient and obedient to their master's wishes.

All education and handling should be based upon the principle that the horse has a good memory and a poor sense of reason. It is evident then that he must never be allowed to indulge in any of the common equine vices such as halter pulling, balking, kicking, biting, running away, etc., because if he succeeds once in doing any one of these things he is very likely to try them again. On the other hand if he is handled firmly, yet gently, and conquered when any of the above vices are attempted he soon gives up trying. Furthermore, the colt should always be given to understand that the man handling him is his master.

Young foals should be taught subordination at the very start and not allowed to become willful or head strong. Even before the time for haltering arrives the youngsters may be taught to stand over, have their feet raised, and in a general way to respond to the master's wishes. Make training a gradual process at first and later it will come as a matter of course. Don't try to teach too much at a time. The colt should understand the first lesson well before going to another.

Handling Enhances Value.

In all cases a liberal education that is begun early will increase the value of the colt for three reasons: 1. He is worth more; 2. The owner has a better opportunity to show the colt off to good advantage, presenting him with the best foot forward, as it were; and 3. The buyer has a much better chance to observe the colt's real merit.

'Time's Flight Turned Backward'
SAGE AND SULPHUR
Made Her Look Twenty Years Younger
READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

STATE OF NEW YORK } ss
COUNTY OF MONROE }
ROCHESTER, N. Y.
Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl, I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my schoolmates, and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. As I grew older, my hair commenced to come out, just a little at first, but gradually more and more, and then began to turn gray. I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy to try a bottle. My hair was quite thin and gray when I began using Sage and Sulphur, and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, being thicker, darker and more glossy than it had been for a long time. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is now as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is still in splendid condition.

Sworn to before me this 24th day of July, 1912 and its enforcement, devote their time and attention to the great task presented to them in removing the possibility of such disgraces.

Roosevelt having said for the 7463d time that he is not a candidate the third term editorials must now be laid aside for another six weeks.

How sickening this everlasting deluge of silly love story novels becomes! Kisses are all right, but intelligent people are interested in one or two other things on this earth.

Now listen to the oratory of the Congressional Democrats, who will show the wickedness of Mr. Taft in letting the trusts down too easy and pushing them too hard.

There was at first much opposition to fortifying Panama, but it seems to be agreed now that a $400,000,000 canal is too valuable property to leave lying around the back yard nights with all these disreputable characters prowling about.

Considering the indecent haste with which the trust prosecutions are being pushed along, a defendant would better not show signs of longevity, or a final settlement may be reached in his lifetime.

Editoriales.

The day for giving thanks has come and gone and what were you thankful for?

The Rev. J. B. Meacham says that the turkey is robbing Thanksgiving day of its true meaning.

We always knew that the old gobbler was a robber for charging so much for himself, but we never suspected him of being guilty of that crime.

The editor of the Logansport Chronicle has started a campaign against knocking. We sympathize with him for he is doomed to disappointment. You know how people dearly love to knock.

And again looking at it with the blue light turned on many a theory gets by until it tries to pass a fact on the same track.

The boys who didn't drown and didn't fall out of a cherry tree last summer should be warned that they should be careful of a gun that isn't loaded.

The report that President Taft is having a derby hat built is only one of the many signs to show that the "plug hat" is gradually being relegated to Indian doctors, circus salesmen and the more infantile sprouts of the Smart Set.

Fortunate, isn't it that a Thanksgiving dinner lasts for several meals to come? Think how many people would have to starve if it didn't because they have to make amends with their bank account for buying a gobbler.

The New Castle Courier says that it would be quite a joke if Connersville and Rushville should get new depots before New Castle does.

Our sense of humor may be lacking but we fail to fall for the joke.

FIRST TURKEY DAY SNOW FOR 18 YEARS

Many Asert That Today is the First "White" Thanksgiving Day Since 1893.

CITY IS ALMOST DESERTED

Thanksgiving day dawned bright and clear with a light snow on the ground. The snow recalled the fact to many people that this is the first "white" Thanksgiving day in Rushville in many years. Some persons say that it has not snowed on Thanksgiving day here since 1893. The city was almost deserted today. Most of the business houses closed all day while many shut their doors at noon to remain closed the remainder of the day. The offices in the court house were "dark" as were the banks and saloons. The postoffice was open until ten o'clock and one city delivery was made while no delivery was made on the rural routes.

AMUSEMENTS

The Princess will have a feature film tonight entitled "In the Philippines." It is a Vitagraph film showing many thrilling battle scenes. The other is a Biograph "Her awakening." It is a sensational drama. Friday and Saturday night the attraction will be "Auld Lang Syne" in three reels.

The Palace theater will show two dramatic films tonight. "The Love of the West," a Flying A film tells a story of the western country that is realistic and true to actual life on the plains. "Love's Sacrifice" is a Thanhouser film. It pictures a story of a melodramatic nature that is calculated to be very entertaining. Mr. Biddle will sing a new illustrated song.

The Portola will show another of the famous Vitagraph monthly pictures of current events tonight. The picture shows many events of importance occurring in this country and in others. This film is educational and instructive and the first one shown here several weeks ago proved a good entertainer. "Saved from the Torrents" is a thrilling Essanay railroad story. It tells how a girl saved a train from going over a dangerous bridge and into the rapids below.

RABBITS NOT TO BE FOUND HERE

Sportsman Says "There Aint No Such a Thing" in The United States.

RODENT IS HARE IN REALITY

Beauty of Legend of Rabbit Laying Easter Eggs is Destroyed by Cold Facts.

There comes a local sportsman with a fine bunch of rabbits," said a sportsman reporter to a sportsman.

There's just where you are mistaken," he replied, as he peered out the window at the retreating form of the sportsman with a bunch of fur running across his back. "There isn't a rabbit in the bunch. And to go even farther there are not any rabbits running around loose in America."

"Oh, you needn't look surprised. It doesn't shock you half as much as it did me when the cold hard fact soaked through my intellect. It took me several hours to get over it. The beauty of the legend of the rabbit laying the Easter eggs was destroyed for me in a moment, and when I thought of all the little rabbit stories I had learned in nursery days I was almost overcome by tears. For years and years men have gone rabbit hunting in America and not a one of them has bagged a rabbit. Rather strange, isn't it? And our legislatures have been regulating the season for hunting rabbits when there isn't a single one out of captivity. But then it's only the case of another popular idea gone wrong."

"We have got a rodent in America, very common all over the country, known as the rabbit. But he isn't a rabbit. He is a hare. He belongs to the same family as does the rabbit, all right, but he is only a cousin, and nothing more. The rabbit is purely a native of Europe. He was taken to Australia and naturalized, but there he became so vicious that the farmers have been trying ever since to get rid of him. Our rabbit, or rather the

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers. This remedy is sold under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If your hair is losing color or coming out, start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-day, and see what a change it will make in a few days' time. This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Special Agents, Hargrove and Mullin,

"I am so pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief." For sale by all dealers.

There is little danger from cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all Dealers.

hare—excuse the mistake—belongs to the family of rodents. He is related to the rat, as is the squirrel and the opossum, but he is strictly a vegetarian and he is very fond of the bark of trees, valuable trees especially. He rarely picks on a tough old shrub but singles out the finest young apple tree on the place.

"The real rabbit is the Lepus cuniculus of Europe. All others are hares and there are about twenty varieties of them in the United States. The European hare is about twenty inches long and weighs seven or eight pounds. The Alpine hare is found in northern Europe and in the mountainous regions of Switzerland, France and Spain, thence east to Japan. He is smaller than the common hare, has a rounder head, shorter ears and legs. There are also many hares in Africa bearing a strong resemblance to their European relatives."

"The hares, like many of the human earth-born mortals, feed mostly at night and are nocturnal in their habits. Their hind legs are the longer, so that they can run up hill easier than down. They are very timid but when cornered put up a good fight for their youngsters, using their hind feet, a la donkey, with good effect. They are prolific but are not as good family raisers as the rabbit. The young are born with hairy bodies and with the eyes open."

"One of the most interesting American hares is the Arctic hare, who is usually very white. He is rarely found below the Arctic circle excepting in Labrador and Newfoundland where he is quite common. Jack rabbit, found in the western part of our own country, have gaunt forms and immense ears, so that they are well named. There are five species of them, including the prairie hare."

"The hare is like man in one respect, that he can endure all sorts of conditions and climates. He has been known to thrive where the thermometer gets as low as fifty degrees below zero and where the mercury climbs as high as 140 in the sun. Mr. Hare gets along very well in the rich valleys and he is also quite at home in the desert. His principal articles of diet are grass, herbage and bark. He drinks but little water, and is protected by his invisibility and his acute sight of sense and smell to say nothing of his fleetness of foot."

"In the western part of the United States there is always great danger of an overpopulation of hares. The 'rabbit-proof' fence is the best protection. 'Rabbit drives' are quite common. Men, women and children form a circle about a mile in circumference and then close in on the animals, killing them with clubs, not a very elegant means of warfare but very effective."

"Rabbits are smaller and shorter and have more equal limbs than hares. The young are born blind and almost hairless. In Europe they are not especially destructive and they are highly prized as food."

"They were introduced into Australia in 1850 when a gentleman turned three pairs loose. In 1875 the animals had become so thick that the animals had become so thick that of abandoning certain parts of the country to the rabbits, as nothing could be raised on account of the destructiveness of the pests. All means of destruction were used and large bounties were paid for rabbit trophies. Little headway was made, however, and the rabbit proof fence was adopted as the best remedy."

"The Belgian hare is really a rabbit, when you look at his family tree. Other fancy varieties of the rabbit are the Dutch rabbit, which is very small, weighing but four pounds, the Angora, Himalayan, Lop, Siberian, Silver Tip, Polish and Flemish rabbit. The hare has been introduced into classical literature several times. The term as swift as a hare was a stereotyped expression of the Old English authors. Even the polished but somewhat political Lord Bacon published a story about a man who hunted 'conies' which are rabbits, and Burns' poem written on seeing a wounded hare limp by him, is too well known to need my reciting it to you."

"But the next time you see a man with a bundle of game ask him if he has been hunting hares, and watch for the puzzled look."

Point of Honor

Bert burst into the house with a whoop of delight. He dashed out into the kitchen, where his mother was making a pie for dinner, and instantly took possession.

"Say, mother!" he shouted. "I want some bread and butter and some cookies and an apple. And, say, mother, when you bake the pie will you cook one in the little pie dish so I can have it soon? It's done? And, say, mother, can I have some of this ginger-bread? Gee, but I'm nearly starved."

When his wants had been partially supplied and he was towing away bread and butter, ginger-bread, apples and other trifles, he broke into a mirthful chuckle.

"Say, mother," he said, "if we didn't have the foxy time at school today, I got another guess comin'. Say, gee you'd 'a' died if you had been there Honest, I thought I'd bust wide open. I never thought a fellow could have so much fun in school."

"You see, Fred Gunkle, he's the smartest fellow in the room, I guess. At least, he knows his lessons best and he never seems to study none, too. Say, and the teacher likes him, 'cause you can see her eyes twinkle when he cuts up, and then she turns her back a minute and when she turns around again her face is just as solemn, and then she scolds him, but Fred doesn't mind. He just kind of stays around after school and jollies her. I bet she like him best of any of us, but, gee, who cares? Who wants the teacher to like you, anyway?"

"Well, this noon Fred he come back early and there wasn't nobody in the room when he come, and so he takes some chalk that he gets off the black-board and he rubs chalk all over the fronts of the fellows' desks, so when they sits down they'll get chalk on the front of their legs. So when they gets up, all the fellows and the girls and everybuddy, for physical culture, and begins to march around the room, every fellow had chalk on the front of his knees! And Fred had some on his, too, so the teacher wouldn't know who done it."

"Gee, I thought I'd die laughin' till the teacher's face begins to get red and she hollers, just as mad as she can: 'Halt!' Gee, I guess we all started. And everybuddy was scared. Only, of course, I wasn't scared, but Nelle—she marches right in front of me—gee, she was scared, and so was the other girls."

"So the teacher says—and by that time she was just as pale in her face—she says: 'Children,' she says, 'I intend to find who is the proprietor of this outrage.'"

"Then the teacher she begins and she says: 'The girls may go to their seats and the boys may march right along in front of my desk.' So we marched right along in front of her desk after the girls went to their seats and sat down, and every fellow had to march by himself 'way from the back of the room. Gee, when it come my turn my shoes sounded like a motorcycle or something, they made such a awful racket."

"Every time a boy came and stood in front of her desk she'd ask him: 'Did you have anything to do with this putting chalk on the desks?' And then when the fellow says, 'No,' she says, 'Do you know who did it?' And then the fellow would say 'No,' because, of course, we didn't none of us know, because we didn't see Fred do it."

"So it come Fred's turn after awhile and he was the very last fellow. And so when Fred come along he didn't wait for the teacher to say a word to him. He just started right in and he says, 'Miss Smith,' he says, 'I know who done it, but I don't feel like I'd better tell, so please don't ask me.' "Gee, I thought me and the other fellows would die, we was so full of laugh, because, of course, Fred wanted the teacher to think he didn't like to tell on some other fellow, but we didn't dare to laugh. Of course, we dared to, but we felt so kind of funny we didn't."

"Miss Smith she says, 'Well, Fred,' she says, 'if it's a point of honor with you not to tell, of course, I won't press the question,' or something like that."

"Then we all went back to our seats and she give us a big long spiel about how bad she felt because some one in the room had told a lie, because, you see, Fred was the only fellow that didn't say he didn't do it, and she said she was glad Fred hadn't told, because she hated a tale bearer, and she hoped we'd all try to be good. And, say, she never tumbled that Fred was the one that did it. And, say, she took up the whole recitation hour preachin' at us, and so when we come out of school I thought we'd die laughin'."

Bert's mother looked reproachful. "That wasn't a very nice thing to do," she said. "It seems to me Fred, just as much as told a lie, anyway."

Bert put two cookies into his pocket and half a banana into his mouth. "Aw, gee," he said, with muffled disgust, "don't you ever want a fellow to have a little fun? Anyway, after school Fred stayed and told her about it, and I thought she'd die laughin', 'cause us fellow stayed out in the hall and listened."

CLEVER ESCAPE OF CONVICT

Prisoner in the Conciergerie Daringly Gains His Freedom and Astonishes All Paris.

A prisoner sentenced the other day at the Seine Assizes to eight years' penal servitude made a sensational escape from the Conciergerie early this morning. When the cells were opened about 7, and the prisoners emerged for exercise, Romeuf came out with the rest. Taking advantage of the warden's back being turned for a moment, he got a fellow prisoner to let him mount on his shoulders, and then, with marvelous agility, he managed to reach the top of the wall, nearly twenty feet high. The top of this was garnished with a "chevaux de frise," but Romeuf, who is a plumber by trade, thought nothing of getting over it. By smashing a window, he made his way into a corridor, and thence into the Palais de Justice, which adjoins the Conciergerie, and in a minute he was a free man. The utmost astonishment is expressed at any one escaping from the Conciergerie. It is famous as the prison where Marie Antoinette and many other of the illustrious prisoners of the Reign of Terror were imprisoned before being led to the scaffold. In more recent times Prince Napoleon, in 1852, and the Duc d'Orleans, in 1890, were detained within its walls.—Paris correspondent London Telegraph.

MADE TARGETS FOR ENEMY

Chinese Soldiers in Battle of Ping Yang All Opened Parasols When It Rained.

No one who has studied the military methods of China will be surprised to learn that "shells" of painted wood have been picked up in the German concession at Hankow. This is truly Chinese. Not so very long ago each soldier was supplied with an oilcloth parasol, and a fan which he tucked up his sleeve. During the battle of Ping Yang, when the rain came on, the parasols were opened and the enemy found the men easy targets, especially as each one wore a large white disk bearing the number of his regiment on his breast and back.

At the arsenal at Nankin it was once decided to shorten a Krupp cannon which had arrived there because it was too long, and to make "solid shells" which would not burst. Green sprouts were also seen on the logs from which gun stocks were to be made. But the "limit," as one may say, was reached at Hankow when an Austrian warship entered the port and saluted the fort. The Chinese attempted to return the courtesy, but stopped short after five or six discharges. As the Chinese commander afterward explained, "When the third artilleryman had been killed we decided to stop firing."

Real "Tumblers."

Originally a tumbler was far from what it is today, and its true meaning has been lost in the many graceful forms in which it is to be seen. What a "tumbler" really is may be inferred from an extract from a gentleman's diary, written in 1893, which also throws light upon the social customs of the times. The entry is as follows: "Had a few friends to dinner. Tried my new tumbling-glasses. Very successful! all got drunk early." These tumbling-glasses, soon called "tumblers" for short, were made with a round or pointed bottom so that they could not be set down when they contained liquids without falling over and spilling their contents. They were made as a sort of joke to conduce to rapid drinking.

Perfume Compounding an Art.

The compounding of perfumes is a distinct branch of chemistry—a perfume maker may be regarded as an artist of chemistry, blending his ingredients with the care of one and the taste and skill of the other profession. Almost all perfumes have as a basis ambergris or civet, and while these materials are most necessary, great care must be exercised in their use, for a grain too much will make the perfume distressingly irritating to the user. The same is true of many combinations of scents, such combinations even producing hysteria in a mild or severe form. If indulged in at all but one distinct scent should be used."

Her Idea of Americans.

A little Highland Scotch girl had looked forward eagerly to the coming of an American cousin. She had never seen an American, but she had her own ideas about them. Her mother had to remonstrate with her for looking so hard at their guest after the American girl had arrived.

"It is very rude," she said. "Why do you look at her like that?"

"But, mother, her hair is lighter than mine."

"Yes."

"And her skin is white."

"Yes, but what of it?"

"I always thought that Americans were black."

Tea.

The earliest mention of tea by an English-speaking writer is probably that contained in a letter from Wickham, an agent of the East India Company, written from Firodo, Japan, on June 27, 1615, to Eaton, another agent of the company, resident at Macao, asking for a pot of the "best sort of chaw." It was not till 1650, or thereabouts, that the English began to use tea to any considerable extent—and with reason, the price of tea in England ranging from $30 to $50 per pound.

Dont Miss the Opening Installment

Well Connects With Subterranean Stream

A well in Dr. H. M. Zehrung's home, in Comersville began yielding not water three weeks ago and has since kept it up. The water originally was cold, and the change to hot water, which was sudden, was supposed at first to be due to the breaking of a hot water pipe somewhere near. A thorough investigation was made, and nothing of the kind was found. Then Dr. Zehrung tried to pump the hot water out of the ground, but the temperature kept up to about 191 degrees in spite of his efforts.

The well is dug for fifteen feet, and is driven twenty-two feet farther, through a thick layer of hard pan which water could hardly penetrate. The dug portion of the well was found to be dry, and how the water came to be heated is a mystery. When cooled it is good for drinking as it was before the hot water appeared.

Several experts have interested themselves in this strange case, and they have unanimously agreed that the water is heated by some hidden source in the earth, and not by any artificial means. Some of them say they think the doctor's well has made unaccountable connection with a subterranean stream which in its turn is heated by a subterranean fire. The temperature of the water has arisen slowly since it changed, and during the ten days has arisen from a heat of about 92 degrees, which was the first temperature taken after the change was noted, to 121 degrees. The thing is somewhat alarming to Dr. and Mrs. Zehrung, who fear that a geyser will burst out in their kitchen, in which the well is situated.

An effort was made Tuesday, to pump the well dry, but the longer the pumping continued the hotter the water became, and after two hours of steady work the iron spout was sizzling steam belched from every discharge of the fluid and the supply was, apparently, as strong as ever. The situation recalls the statecaving walls was a known fact, but his story of the hot water was not generally believed. It is now thought possible that a subterranean stream of heated water really does lie somewhere under the city.

The well continues to yield hot water, and to hold the secret of the manner in which the water is heated. College professors, well drillers, plumbers and others have swarmed to the house to see the marvel, and have come away baffled. A professor of physical geography condemned the idea that the heat came from a subterranean fire, and was asked by a plumber who had done some work about the Zehrung home recently, to explain the fact by some other theory. This the professor was unable to do.

Student's Health Creed

I believe my body and good health are sacred. If I am sick it will very probably be because I have violated some one or more of nature's laws of health.

I will study nature's laws of health and will obey them for my own sake. I will not suck my fingers, or pick my nose or wipe my nose on my hand or sleeves, for these practices are unsanitary and very impolite.

I will not wet my fingers in my mouth when turning the leaves of a book.

I will not put pencils in my mouth or wet them with my lips.

I will not put pins or money in my mouth.

I will not buy or use chewing gum nor buy and eat cheap candies.

I will only use my mouth for eating good plain food, drinking pure water and milk, and for saying good and kind words.

I will always chew my food thoroughly, and never drink whiskey or wine. I will strive against the habit of "clearing my throat" because it is nearly always unnecessary, and may be disagreeable to others.

I will not cough or sneeze without turning my face and holding a piece of paper or handkerchief before my mouth. Polite people never cough in public if they can prevent it.

I will keep my face, hands and finger nails as clean as possible.

I will not spit on the floors, stairways or sidewalks, and will try not to spit at all; ladies and gentlemen do not spit.

I will wash my mouth every morning on getting up and at night on going to bed, and will use a tooth brush if I can get one.

I will be clean in body, clean in mind, and avoid all habits that may give offense to others.

I will get all the fresh air I can and will open wide my bedroom window when I go to bed.

Bones Evicted From Graves

It is the custom among the less wealthy classes in Greece to bury a body for three years only. At the end of that period the bones are exhumed, that room may be made in the grave for other bodies. The boxes and bundles of human bones, here shown awaiting removal by relatives or friends of the deceased, are seen outside the charnel-house of the cemetery at Athens.

HAD TO CALL OFF WOLGAST FIGHT

Champion Stricken With Appendicitis On Eve of Battle.

THOUGHT HE WAS KNOCKED OUT

Upon Regaining Consciousness After Doctors Had Removed His Appendix, Little Battler Was Convinced That Freddie Welsh Had Done For Him and Was Very Much Concerned to Know How It Happened.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 30.—Ad Wolgast underwent an operation yesterday, and probably is out of the ring for life. He was stricken with appendicitis a few hours before he was to enter the ring with Freddie Welsh to defend his title as champion lightweight. It is estimated that his sudden illness has cost the champion $100,000. Wolgast rallied nicely from the operation and the doctors say he will be out in ten days or two weeks.

Lying weak and helpless, surrounded by his nurse, wife and doctor, the champion, upon regaining consciousness, muttered incoherently of his fight with Welsh, which he seemed to think was just over. "Say, did he knock me out? Did he?" repeated Ad over and over again. He tried feebly to raise himself on his elbows, but fell back nearly exhausted.

Didn't Think He Could Do It.

"Gee, I'm thirsty, thirsty. I did not think he could knock me out. Hey, bo, how did it happen?" His one idea was that he was knocked out by Welsh.

Wolgast was taken sick Tuesday night, but his condition was not regarded as serious until yesterday, when the doctors advised an immediate operation. The surgeons who relieved the champion of his troublesome vermiform appendix declare that his splendid physical condition will pull him through in fine shape.

Promoter Tom McCarey officially declared the Wolgast-Welsh contest off. The house had been sold out early in the week, and the gross receipts, estimated at $75,000, will have to be returned to purchasers.

A HUMANE PLAN

St. Louis Police Chief Thinks He Can Reduce Crime There.

St. Louis, Nov. 30.—Chief of Police William Young, carrying into effect his ideas of preventing crime, declares that the police department will feed the 300 or more homeless men who seek shelter in police stations every cold or stormy night. He quartered 184 men in the basement of the Four Courts building last night, and the district police stations accommodated 100 others.

"It is the duty of the police department to prevent crime as well as to punish crime," said Chief Young. "When we turned these 300 homeless men out of the police station this morning they were all hungry. Some of them may be forced to steal to get food. I propose to serve a pint of hot coffee and half a loaf of bread to each homeless man."

"I am going to have patrolmen act as waiters. We can prepare the coffee in the jail kitchen and get the bread from the industrial school."

NO DOUBT OF IT

The Horrors of Desert Warfare Again Brought Home to Europe.

Rome, Nov. 30.—A party of officers, surgeons and reporters who have been searching the places in Tripoli retaken by the Italians, found many bodies of Italians, victims of the fighting of Oct. 23, the day before the Italian massacre of Arabs. These bodies had been atrociously, unspeakably mutilated. Some of the victims had been crucified and their eyelids stitched so that they could not close them. Some had been buried to their armpits, their hands lopped off and their eyes gouged out. The agonized faces of many of them suggest that they had to endure awful tortures before death relieved their sufferings.

A Boy and a Gun.

Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 30.—While hunting, Joseph Pickering, the eighteen-year-old son of Ollie Pickering, set his gun at his feet, after discharging one barrel at a rabbit. The other shell was then exploded in some unknown manner and the charge entered his chest. Physicians say there is little hope of his recovery.

Jury Acquitted Mrs. Patterson. Denver, Nov. 30.—Mrs. Gertrude Patterson was acquitted of the murder of her husband, Charles A. Patterson, whom she had confessed she shot on Sept. 25 last. Mrs. Patterson had little to say, merely stating that she would stay in Denver awhile, perhaps a few months, and then would return to San-doval, Ill.

SITUATION IN CHINA STILL ONE OF DOUBT

No Definite Information From the South.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Proffer of the services of 2,500 United States soldiers now stationed in the Philippines has been made by the United States to China to keep the railroad between Peking and the seaboard open, and for the protection of foreigners.

Peking, Nov. 30.—The official report of the surrender of Wuchang, about which Premier Yuan Shih Kai was so elated, is now seriously doubted. The actual situation cannot be learned and it seems that the government has no definite information. It is stated, but not confirmed, that the rebels, of whom there are 20,000 still effective, have shut themselves up in Wuchang and closed the gates. They are said to be still dickering for an armistice, which up to last reports had not been granted. There have been artillery exchanges between the imperial gunners at Hanyang and the rebels at Wuchang. The rumors suggest that General Li Yuan Hung, who it may be recalled recently delegated the rebel military command of the rebels to General Huang Hsin, does not agree with the latter in regard to surrendering. Huang Hsin feels that he is not beaten yet. Pending more definite news from the south the majority of the people here are of an open mind as to the situation.

Colonel Willoughby, a British officer who has just arrived here from Hankow, is most enthusiastic as to the merits of the soldiers on both sides. He praises their heroic courage, energy and contempt of death, but confirms the statements as to the superiority of discipline of the imperial soldiers. He says the best troops in Europe are no better fighters than these men.

GREAT BRITAIN DISPLAYS HAND

Joins With Russia In Demanding Shuster's Dismissal.

"DOUBLE CROSS" FOR PERSIA

Even a British Correspondent Charges His Country With Duplicity of the Worst Character in Her Attitude Toward Weak Nation Being Squeezed Between Powers—Hints That United States Will Take Action.

Teheran, Nov. 30.—In plain words, Russia has made a demand for the dismissal of W. Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer general of Persia, a point at which she has long transparently been aiming. She has sent another ultimatum to Persia specifying certain conditions which must be complied with in forty-eight hours, or otherwise the Russian troops now at Resht, sixteen miles from the capital of Ghilan, will advance at once.

The new demands include the dismissal of Mr. Shuster and Mr. Lecoffre, the tax appraiser of the province of Azerbaijan, who was appointed by the American treasurer general; the submission to Russia for her approval the names of all non-Persians at present or in future to be employed by the government of this country, and the payment of the cost of sending troops to Persia. The ultimatum also says that Persia's future relations with Russia and Great Britain must be regulated in conformity with the interests of those powers.

Great Britain had been consulted by Russia and approved the ultimatum, and the mention of British interests has surprised and astonished the Persian leaders. It is believed that it will be impossible for Persia to comply with the demands.

Russia bases her demand for the ousting of Mr. Shuster on the publication of his letter in the London Times which it is claimed incited the Persians against Russia.

The Persian officials are dumfounded at Russia's new ultimatum. They say they humiliated themselves to M. Poklevsky, the Russian minister, by apologizing and agreeing to the previous demands, on the advice of Great Britain, relying on the promise of the English government that the Russian troops would thereupon be withdrawn. There is consternation over the latest move of the government of the czar. The new premier, Samsam Es Sultaneh, had submitted the names of the members of his cabinet to the mejlis, or parliament, which, thinking the members reactionary, rejected it. Then came the news of Russia's ultimatum, whereupon the parliament, after a turbulent session, sanctioned the new ministry. There is bitter feeling here against Great Britain over the latest developments.

OUR SIDE OF IT

Will America Interfere in Behalf of the Persecuted Mr. Shuster?

London, Nov. 30.—The Teheran correspondent of the Graphic accuses Great Britain of having concealed for four years repeated violations of the Anglo-Russian agreement in regard to Persia. He says the Russian and British assurances that the troops of the former country would be withdrawn when Persia apologized proved as false as every other Russian assurance since the agreement with England was signed in 1907. Every British interest in Persia, says the correspondent, is now threatened by England's pusillanimous acquiescence in Russia's unjustifiable aggressions. Nemesis will take the shape of a continuous land frontier of Russia and England. This is now practically imminent. The Russian march to the Persian gulf has begun and the defense of this frontier will place a colossal burden on the British empire.

The Teheran correspondent of the Times telegraphs as follows: "The fiction of Persian independence, which is a poor thing existing on Russian sufferance, will now end unless credence can be attached to the statement that the United States, although it does not consider itself Mr. Shuster's sponsor, is prepared to take immediate action on the ground that the demand for the dismissal of an American citizen by a foreign power when he is conscientiously executing the duties stipulated in his contract, is an unfriendly act."

Republican love feast and he declared that it was his greatest regret now that he was unable to attend that truly remarkable meeting.

"Sherman, Watson, Cannon, Hemmaway and Crumacker all came over to see me that day and I had to go downstairs to talk to them. We chatted about politics and I found some consolation in hearing about what was to happen if I could not be there.

"But when I saw Judge Crumacker, Indiana's lone Republican congressman, I could see in my fancy the thirty congressmen that were elected from Indiana in 1894. Compare that with today. We carried the State by forty thousand that election and in two years, when McKinley was elected, we did almost as well. Of course, I didn't mention it to Judge Crumacker but I could think about it."

Capt. Gowdy was State chairman of the Republican party in Indiana for six years and it was during that period that the G. O. P. won some of its most remarkable victories.

Uncle Jack was a leader of great resources and versatility and the majorities that were piled up at the close of the campaign was proof enough. It was for his services in Indiana that President McKinley called him to Canton, Ohio, after the election in '96, and offered him any consulate at his command with the exception of the British. Mr. Gowdy chose to be consul-general to Paris.

Uncle Jack was asked his opinion concerning the conditions political today. "I can't say that it looks very hopeful just at present, but sentiment does change quickly. I recall that two months before William McKinley was elected it was figured that he would lose Indiana by a majority of twenty thousand. We knew that because we had the poll books to prove it. In those two months the sentiment of the people changed like magic and McKinley carried Indiana by a good round majority."

Mr. Gowdy questions whether the Democratic party can elect a man strong enough to defeat President Taft. "I still believe that William Jennings Bryan is the strongest man in the Democratic party today," he said. "I believe that he will go into that convention and if he makes it known that he will accept the nomination the convention will be swept off its feet. He has a wonderful personal magnetism and I actually believe he is the best man of the Democratic party to elect. Of course, lots of Democrats hold his money ideas against him, but that is all settled now, the gold standard is established and it can never be routed."

"But I dread to think of a Democratic victory. If men want to foist back on to the people the time of Grover Cleveland and '93 let them vote the Democratic ticket. If they win next time it will be a case of history repeating itself. But I won't even except 1893. I believe it would mean a greater catastrophe than was that of '93. Unfortunately there are a lot of free trade Republicans and some protection Democrats. If there as many of one as there are of the other, all's well and good."

Uncle Jack talked at length concerning the political conditions. He predicts that with the election of a Democratic president and congress will come the greatest financial stringency and consequent hard times that the United States has ever seen.

"But you may state," declared Uncle Jack as he winked his eye slyly and his face broadened into a smile, "that I wish I were twenty years younger, were well and could get into this next campaign."

drove King Lear out as it was the storm of his brain when he considered the ingratitude of his children."

The minister said that the grateful and thoughtful Thanksgiving is the kind that goes to the heart and the kind in which God rejoices. He declared that it looks beyond its own front door and beyond the material things. It casts bread upon the waters, he said, and does not expect it to return with two hundred per cent interest. He asserted that if the bread never returns the giver is amply repaid and that it seldom ever gets away before a blessing returns. It is a kind of Thanksgiving, he said, which thinks as well as acts.

The Rev. Mr. Meacham believes that Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter Sunday are all in danger. He recalled the fact that there are some men who always get drunk on Christmas day when the holiday should be given over to sweet and pleasant thoughts. He declared that the rabbit, the Easter egg and the new bonnet has a growing tendency to rob Easter day of its real meaning.

Mr. Meacham asked if a man who is not a Christian can give acceptably before God. His answer was no. He declared that Christ is the real mediator between God and man and without first accepting Christ man can not reach God through giving or by any other method.

TWO CANDIDATES ENTER THE ARENA

No move has been made to fix the time and place for the holding of the district convention to select a successor to Elmer Bassett, district chairman. It is understood that the matter will be delayed until after the Democratic meeting.

Candidates for the district chairmanship are entering the arena every day. Besides the three which have already been prominently mentioned, two others, both of Henry county, have announced their intentions of trying for the place.

The three men who have been seeking the job for some time are Herman Trichler of Brookville, Charles Hack of Shelbyville and Charles Beck of Richmond. The two latest candidates from Henry county are Dr. F. A. Bosler and W. L. Risk of New Castle.

The New Castle Courier says of the two candidates and their chances and incidentally mentions the machine which Congressman Gray and his brother have built up in the Sixth district.

W. L. Risk of this city, who is a receptive candidate for the district chairmanship, is generally looked upon as the only person capable of cementing all factions into one capable political machine.

Dr. Bosler is a full-fledged candidate for the district chairmanship and is in the race with Charles Beck
